Program Description: Our fellowship is a clinically intensive program with a very high surgical volume. As such, we have the ability to be involved in a large number of multi-center trials as well as conducting our own clinical research. Fellows have the opportunity to enroll in biostats and epidemiology courses and to work with the urologists and colo-rectal surgeons in our institution. Our graduates obtain special training in the “business” of medicine and statistical analysis with the SPSS program. Our fellowship has traditionally been a three year program with two fellows working with us at any given time. With the recent, potential changes in sub specialty certification, we are willing to discuss alternative programs with U.S. and non-U.S. applicants.
